Message from your Engagement Officer

In the lead up to Christmas, the independent crime-fighting charity, Crimestoppers, is today appealing to the public for information on those making, buying or selling counterfeit banknotes.

Director of Operations for Crimestoppers, Roger Critchell, said: "Fake notes are completely worthless and knowingly holding or passing on counterfeit notes is a crime". "The purpose of this campaign is to raise awareness of counterfeit money, especially around Christmas when money can be tight, but also to highlight how heartless and callous fraudsters can be."

If you have information on those making, selling or buying counterfeit notes then please contact Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.
